A Fatal Railroad Accident.

Special to the Gazette:

DENVER, July 19.—Following the out-bound train on the D. & R. G. this morning was the switch engine with 4 or 5 men upon it. When rounding the curve between Sixth and Seventh streets, in West Denver, the engine jumped the track and capsized, injuring Jack Rinehart, the yardmaster, so seriously that he died in a few minutes. James Moynahan, the engineer, was scalded by the escaping steam so badly that he also died this afternoon.

Upon visiting the scene of the disaster the torn and broken engine was seen lying across a broken road-bed, the parts still hot from the escaping steam. The engine lay upon its side, the smoke stack almost buried in the mud at the side of the track. The place where from the marks upon the ties, it was apparent that the engine had left the track was about fifty feet from where the engine lay. The road-bed at this point was in good order, at least as good as any other part of the track. The engine struck the curve under a speed of 20 miles an hour.

The drive wheels jumped the track, the engine darted off in a tangent from the curve tearing through the ties and shaping the rails like pipe stems till crossing the upper rail it struck the adjacent track of the South Park road, toppling backward upon the ties and track which it had left. Here the steam broke forth from the escape and safety valves in a flood, striking the writhing men beneath with a flood of boiling water and drenching them from head to foot in a scalding torrent. In a moment all was over. The unfortunate engineer suffered terribly and begged piteously to be shot that he might be relieved from his agony.

Trying to Ruin South Pueblo.

Special to the Gazette:

SOUTH PUEBLO, July 19. The A. T. & S. F. Co. began work to day to lay a third rail between their crossing and their depot, on the north side. They say they will not stop a train of any kind in South Pueblo after the third rail is laid. They propose to kill South Pueblo.

GENERAL NEWS.

The Yellow Fever.

MEMPHIS, July 19. Lewis Brumond, aged 37, residence Hernando road near Looney's switch has just been reported to the board of health as another new case.

LOUISVILLE, July 19.—As to this city establishing quarantine against Memphis the following represents the public sentiment:

We cannot afford to go back on our humane and sensible record of last year and there is now no reason to do so, but, it would be well for some system to be adopted by which officers should be stationed at some points down the road with strict instructions and full authority to stop the bringing of suspicious baggage into our hotels and boarding houses and to turn every case of disease which could possibly be regarded as even incipient yellow fever aside to a yellow fever hospital. That will be enough. While the city of Memphis is not under the epidemic cloud or suffering from more than a dozen cases and those caught one from the other it would be unnecessary hardship to put the wife and children off the train. We must keep the yellow fever out, but we must let the healthy come, and this not impossible, it seems to us. We must not let fleeing families with bundles, bed clothes and other domestic rubbish into the city, but where men and women healthy with change of clothing wish to come, they must be permitted. It would be folly to try to prevent them. We can be more careful than last year and still lose none of our good name for humanity.

NEW ORLEANS, July 19.—The auxiliary sanitary association sent a dispatch to the governor of Texas and to the president of the board of health at Galveston, suggesting the rescinding of the quarantine against New Orleans, and declaring that there has not been a case of yellow fever in New Orleans this season. The board of health enforce a strict quarantine against Memphis. Dr. Chapin was instructed to telegraph to the president of the Galveston board that quarantine against Memphis is in full force, that no case of yellow fever is existing in the city. Dr. Sutherland, medical agent of Texas, telegraphed to Dr. Chapin that the Galveston quarantine against New Orleans was unwarranted and precipitate, and he had sent a protest to the governor, and requested him to suspend his official sanction of the Galveston quarantine against New Orleans.

PHILADELPHIA, PA., July 19.—The physician at quarantine reports yellow fever patients generally improved.

LOUISVILLE, July 19.—At a meeting of the board of health this afternoon, the rules and regulations of the sanitary council of the Mississippi valley were adopted. These rules relate to the inspection of steamboats carrying passengers and freight from river and Gulf ports to the interior, and to the more effective quarantining of railroads. The regulations touching railroads require extreme sanitary care of deposits stationed around houses, car shops, grounds, water closets, and privies, which must be daily inspected by the local railroad agent or official to remove disinfecting matter every week, where it is necessary. The points relating to quarantine are important, and are as follows: Whenever a railroad train departs from an infected station, no person with fever shall be allowed to take passage on such train. There shall be an entire transfer of passengers and baggage to another train of cars, which train shall never enter an infected district. This transfer shall be made under the supervision of a medical officer. No person with the fever shall be allowed to proceed on this train, but shall return to the point of departure or be treated in a hospital at the place of transfer. The cars which carry freight without breaking bulk may pass without transfer if the freight cars are ventilated in such a way that a constant current of air passes through the whole length of the cars during transit. Way freight shall be transferred at a point not exceeding 20 miles from the point of departure, and the cars from which such freight has been transferred shall not proceed further on the road, but shall be returned to the point of departure. During the existence of an epidemic of yellow fever the freight cars, after unloading, shall be thoroughly cleansed by scrubbing and sprinkling with carbolic acid or fumigated and disinfected and then painted.

These regulations were fully discussed before adoption. They embody a very effective remedy against the transportation of disease and impose comparatively little trouble upon the railroad companies.

MEMPHIS, July 19.—Another genuine stampede of citizens is in progress. The rush for railroad tickets this evening recalls the scene of last Thursday week, when 5,000 people left the city. The desire of all who can go is to go at once, and there will be a jam on all trains leaving Memphis to night. The officers of the Hebrew hospital appropriation to day furnished one hundred Jewish families with necessary means of transportation to distant cities. City authorities are also sending widows and children out of the city. Three new cases are reported this afternoon, Chas. Kesmodel and his two children. These make seven as the total new cases reported for to day. There are several sick people in the neighborhood of Clay street, whose cases are, to say the least very suspicious. Business is paralyzed and many wholesale merchants are closing their stores. Fred Eckers died this evening; Mrs. Robert Hesler and Chief of Police Atchison are both in a critical condition.

LATER.—Mrs. Robert Hesler died tonight at 9 o'clock. The remainder of the family is progressing favorably. Nearly all the small towns adjacent have quarantined against the city.

Sporting.

SARATOGA, July 19.—The third race, sweepstakes, distance 1¼ miles, was won by Monitor, Bramble second, 2:12¼. Bramble was the favorite, four to one over the field of four. The introductory scramble of five furlongs was won by Egypt. Bonnie Wood and Vagrant ran dead for second place; time 1:40. In the race for Travers stake Keene's Spendthrift and Dan Sparling were defeated by Falsetto, Spendthrift second, Haindl third; time 2:03½. The one mile dash, selling race, was won by Charley Gorham; Dick Sasser second; Martina third. Time 1:47¼.

Decline in Grain.

CHICAGO, July 19. There has been considerable excitement during the past week in consequence of the rapid and unchecked decline in grain and provisions on 'change. Favorable crop reports, rumors that the combination which has held wheat up for a few months past, were selling out, and the expected outbreak of fever in southern cities have combined to depress prices. The decline in cash wheat has amounted to about fourteen cents during the week, the lowest sales being to-day, when on call wheat sold for July option at 86½. There were rumors of failures, but so far as known they were only temporary embarrassments, and all firms interested are expected to continue business on Monday. The clearings to day were larger by a million and a half than usual, on account of the heavy decline in wheat by the combination. The total deliveries made by them were 1,700,000 bushels here, and 800,000 bushels in Milwaukee. It is understood that they are rapidly getting out of the deal. The culmination of the break will come Monday if it is not already reached.

Cox's Hope.

NEW YORK, July 19. Counsellor Howe has obtained from Justice Porter, of the supreme court, a writ of error and stay of proceedings in behalf of Chastine Cox, convicted of the murder of Mrs. Hull. The case is to be argued in October.

The Buford Trial.

OWENTON, Ky., July 19.—In the Buford trial Col. Phil. Thompson opened this morning in behalf of the prisoner. He will be followed this afternoon by Gen. Rodman for the state. The prevailing feeling is that Buford will not hang.

Whisky Did It.

LOUISVILLE, July 19.—A special to the Courier-Journal, from Henderson, Ky., says that near the line of this county with Union, last evening James Lemcock killed Elisha Thompson by a blow on the head with a gun. Thompson was in the act of preventing Lemcock from shooting a man named Wedding. Cause, whisky.

Drowned.

NEW YORK, July 19.—The steamship Longshaw, of the New Bolfas direct line, which left this port yesterday, returned to day with the loss of Captain Bain, who had fallen overboard and was drowned.

Sale of a Railroad.

LOUISVILLE, July 19.—Pursuant to an order of the U. S. court entered June 17th in the case of Opdyke and Cash un and others against the St. Louis & Southern R. R. Co., the Kentucky division was sold at noon to-day at the court house by John Boyle, commissioner. After disposing of the rolling stock, lands, etc., to the Louisville & Nashville and Great Southern Co., the road was sold to the same party for $1,000,000. The total amount paid for the property was $1,050,030.50. Nineteen twentieths of the bonds of the road are held by the Louisville & Nashville Co.

There are nine blacksmith shops in town.

The Colorado Rural Life has suspended publication.

Mr. Hooker's tea store on Huerfano street seems a busy place.

We acknowledge the receipt of wedding cake from Mr. and Mrs. Killin.

The Crystal City Mining and Milling Company has opened an office in town.

The next session of the county court convenes the first Monday in September.

A wire fence has been built to protect the trees on the college ground from the cattle.

To day's copy of the Mentor will contain several columns of ordinances of the city of Monument.

A kiln of 125,000 brick has been burned by Mr. Charley Rogers just east of town. Messrs. Stevens & Rouse get the brick for their new barn of Mr. Rogers.

Last evening's passenger train was about fifty minutes late, the delay we believe was attributable to the fact of the engineer being a new man on the road.

Mr. J. E. McClees is in the city making arrangements for a sale of pictures to take place some time next week. The gentleman informs us that his stock is first-class.

Thursday night the Colorado Springs Hotel and the Crawford House were so full that cots were temporarily provided for a number of guests. These two houses combined under the able management of Mr. J. F. Atherton, have acquired a great popularity at home and a wide reputation abroad.

Messrs. Murphy and Jones, carpenters and builders of this city, who have been doing an immense jobbing and repairing business, inform us that, notwithstanding the slight slacking up in building which has lately occurred, their branch of work keeps up very well, and they have a full force of hands employed.

Messrs. True & Sutton inform us that they confidently expect the bulk of the Leadville freighting business will be returned to Colorado Springs very soon. These gentlemen have handled the commission business of this city for a number of years, and probably form their opinion on a sound basis. This is good news for our exporters.

The dairymen of Colorado Springs drew a long sigh of relief yesterday afternoon as the rain came gently down. The grass has been dying and drying up rapidly for some time, so that had the drouth continued much longer it would have necessitated extensive feeding, but the heavy shower of yesterday will make a marked improvement in the feed.

Mr. J. P. McMillen, proprietor of the Central Hotel on Tejon street is having a number of new rooms cleaned, repaired and furnished which will add greatly to his present accommodations. He informs us that his business is very great and that within a few days he has refused rooms to at least thirty applicants who wished steady board and lodging.

Mr. F. Hermann yesterday brought in a fine pair of twelve-tupped elk antlers measuring three feet across from tip to tip. The animal was killed on the Hayden Divide about thirty miles west of Colorado Springs, and must have been a stray, as it was supposed the elk had all been driven out of this portion of Colorado. The horns were in the velvet state and not yet matured.

In conversation with Mr. Woodgate we learned that the Colorado Springs and Leadville Stage Company, of which he is a member, is meeting with better success than could at first be hoped for. Nearly every coach starts out well filled. Although there were but four passengers on board yesterday, next Monday's coach will be loaded to its fullest capacity. This is essentially a Colorado Springs enterprise and will undoubtedly receive the encouragement of business men.

Representative Belford, says the Tribune, has decided to hold the competitive examination of candidates for appointment to West Point from Colorado, at Denver, September 20th. Professors Sewell, of Boulder; Dennett, of Pueblo, and Gove, of Denver, have been selected as a board of examiners. As several localities in the state have advanced the name of some bright young citizen as an aspirant for the appointment, the examination will arouse a large interest.

Personal.

Special Mail Agent Adams went south yesterday.

Dr. Coombs is out again after an illness of a few days.

The Rev. Mr. Bliss came down from Leadville last evening.

Mrs. Mayor France has gone to Denver and will remain a week.

The Hon. H. A. Risley came down on the train from Denver yesterday.

Mr. J. F. Hewitt and family leave on a camping tour the first of the week.

Prof. J. H. Kerr is down from Leadville for a visit of a few days with his family.

Conductor Leighton had charge of the passenger trains of this division yesterday.

Mr. Wm. Clark, Colorado Springs' nurseryman, has returned from Canon City.

Mr. H. P. Metcalf, correspondent and agent of the California Spirit of the Times, is in the city.

Mr. C. E. Wellesley with his two little children and their nurse started for England yesterday. Mr. Wellesley expects to return in a few months.

We are glad to learn that Mr. W. H. Rogers, who has been seriously sick, is so far recovered as to be able to ride out in pleasant weather.

Mrs. A. G. Brooks and two little daughters, from Lawrence, Kas., arrived in this city last evening, intending to try Colorado air for her health.

First Assistant Postmaster General Tyner, Second Assistant General Hazen, Director of the Mint Burchard, ex-Senator Dorsey, of Arkansas, and Wm. P. Copeland, New York Herald correspondent, are in Denver and expect to visit Colorado Springs.

Mr. M. C. McArthur, of Burlington, Iowa, in company with his son and a party of friends, is a guest at the Springs Hotel. Mr. Mc. is one of Burlington's most enterprising citizens, and is now traveling through our state on a pleasure trip of a few months. Mr. McArthur is also looking for a good investment of a portion of his capital. We hope he may decide to become a citizen of Colorado Springs.

City Council.

The city council held an adjourned meeting last night at which all the members were present, Mayor France presiding. The question of printing the city ordinances was referred to the committee on printing, who were instructed to confer with the printing offices in regard to the matter.

Mr. Robbins, as a committee of one, reported on the application of the street sprinklers for permission to tap the main pipe in the alley west of Tejon street between Huerfano street and Pike's Peak avenue. Report adopted and the application granted.

The question of allowing the manufacture of gas was discussed and final consideration postponed until next meeting.

The bill of S. E. Sessions for water-boxes, $49.10, was allowed.

Council adjourned till Monday evening, the 21st.

A Sensible Conclusion.

Our esteemed cotemporary the Mountaineer makes some temperate and reasonable remarks on the Pueblo affair. It does not succeed in maintaining the same judicial tone throughout but is in the main just in its comments. We give a portion of the article which is as follows: "From what we can learn at this time, we think it safe to assume that the trouble at Pueblo was entirely of a personal character. That is to say, a quarrel to a large extent outside of the companies. What the nature of the trouble south of Pueblo may be, we await telegraphic information to bring forth.

From what we can learn, however, the trouble at Pueblo arose from the brotherhood of engineers. It will be remembered that not long ago the A., T. & S. F. Co. undertook to make some changes in their engineer corps, and the brotherhood at once took the matter up and a conflict ensued. The company determined upon removing the members of the brotherhood, and replacing them with non-union men."

An Interesting Paper.

Some one has left on our desk a copy of the New Jersey Mirror, bearing date November 7, 1861, which is very interesting indeed, especially to those of our readers who can turn back memory's pages and contemplate the troublous times and exciting scenes of that period in the nation's history. Some of the head lines are very curious to the present reader, as for instance, "Rebel Plans," "Destitution in the South," and "Times in Secessia," referring, of course, to the war times and to the extremely high price charged for various articles in the southern states. It also gives an account of the "Army Bakery," which was situated in the vaults of the capitol at Washington, and a description of General Fremont's famous "Body Guard" of three hundred picked men. The most interesting as well as important article in the paper, however, is a copy of General Winfield Scott's resignation as commander-in-chief of the army, dated October 31, 1861.

The "New Play."

Mr. E. P. Sullivan, the advance agent of Lawrence Barrett's company, visited our office yesterday. He promises us a rare treat in the coming appearance of Lawrence Barrett and California theatre company in a "New Play." The Denver News in speaking of the great play says: "The "New Play" was presented at the opera house to an audience which if not large, was appreciative in the last degree. It embraced to no inconsiderable extent the best critical taste in the city, and the reception of the play was enthusiastic. The News has no recollection of a performance which has produced such an agreeable effect. In the somewhat exaggerated phraseology of the stage it was immense. Without attempting to review the plot, it will suffice to say that it is founded upon the most inflammable of the passions, jealousy. Typical of the "Moor" a frantic husband is made the medium of an analysis of a jealous passion which the author has drawn with a vividness and fervor which Shakespeare does not excel, and which Mr. Barrett interpreted with an effect which literally magnetized his audience. It was the conjunction of the twin genii of power and effect. The author who conceived and the artist who portrayed the thrilling spectacle of passions run riot, of a royalty in misery, seemed to have united in a dramatic achievement which should wed both to fame. If the author writes no more he has done enough for immortality. Of course this sounds like exaggeration. But all who heard it will pronounce the "New Play" a marvel. It is said to be a translation from the Spanish. Such luxuriance of passion and feeling would be unnatural in a land less tropical in the poetry of sentiment. But Mr. Barrett's interpretation intensifies the interest. The audience lose sight of the mimic surroundings in the depth and reality of the emotions. Indeed it was an achievement worthy of the great actor's splendid powers.

Nor can we refrain from rendering a deserved tribute to Miss Gilman's Alice, the suspected wife in the drama. Her conception of the part was both striking and original, and was given with admirable effect. Miss Gilman indeed has won more favor in Denver by her careful and painstaking acting than any lady who has come among us for many a day. And it is a justly-won popularity.

Mr. Seymour's Heywood, while less marked in distinctive peculiarity, was finely drawn. So, too, with Fitzgerald's Edmund."

A Temperance Lecture To-Morrow Night.

Dr. Wm. C. Gibbons who will be remembered as a gentleman who spent a week in this city recently lecturing on temperance is in town. He will speak to-morrow evening in Court House Hall and he extends a cordial invitation to all to come and hear him. Dr. Gibbons has been lecturing in the mining districts of Colorado, and while in Leadville met with the following adventure, the story of which we copy from the Reveille:

"A crowd of about five hundred men of all classes and grades assembled to hear Dr. Gibbons, on Sunday evening, at the corner of Harrison avenue and State street. He gave a general temperance talk which was well received, the audience continually increasing. The doctor had spoken about thirty minutes, when Marshal Kelly put in an appearance and said, "you must stop, you are blockading the street." Dr. Gibbons replied, "I have permission from Mayor James to speak here at this time and place." "I don't care," said the marshal, "you should have got permission of me." The Dr. then told the boys what the trouble was, when cries of "go on, go on, we will protect you, came from all parts of the audience. Dr. Gibbons quickly remarked, "hold on boys, we will not have any disturbance, I am a harmonizer, I believe in law and order," and turning to the chief, said, "if you will take the trouble to step up to Alderman Murphy's place he will corroborate what I say; for he also spoke to the mayor at my request and received his permission." "I don't care anything about it, and if you don't come down off there I will take you down." "Well, I am not coming down," said Dr. Gibbons. "Well," said Mr. Kelly, "come go up to Murphy's with me." The boys remarked they would stay till Dr. Gibbons returned. Mr. Murphy corroborated the statement already made as to the mayor's permission. When Dr. Gibbons said, "It's all right then, is it." "Well," said Marshal Kelly, "you can go on the other corner and speak." "No sir," said Dr. Gibbons, "I received permission to speak right there," and suiting the action to the word, walked briskly to his platform on the carpenter's bench, and concluded his speech amid great enthusiasm. But the Dr. could not help but remark, "every evening five times this number of men congregate here to see a man walk a rope in the interest of a play house and it is not considered that they block the street, but when a man opposes a damnable traffic which sends 60,000 men and women to drunkards' graves annually, 5,000 a month, 166 a day, and each hour 7 souls go over the yawning chasm of destruction, this is too much for men who are in cahoots with the business." However, the meeting ultimated in a success. Thirty-seven hard drinking men took the pledge of total abstinence. Dr. Gibbons closed his remarks by reciting a beautiful poem,

"Cast Bread upon the waters cast.....
Shall be gathered at the last."

A patented swing machine has been erected on Pike's Peak avenue by Messrs. Schreiner and Burton. It is intended mostly for the use of children, and these gentlemen seem to think that the household furniture of no family is complete without one.

On last Tuesday Dr. T. G. Horn successfully performed the operation of removing a cataract from Mr. D. W. Robbins' right eye.

The Proposed Gas Company.

At a meeting of the Colorado Springs Gas and Coke Company, held yesterday afternoon, in the office of the Silver Wing Mining and Reduction Company over the First National Bank, the following gentlemen, composing the board of directors were present, viz; Messrs. D. Russ Wood, H. A. True, Irving Howbert, Col. J. H. Bacon and W. S. Jackson.

Col. Bacon was called to the chair and the board then proceeded to elect the officers of the company, which resulted as follows: The Hon. D. Russ Wood was chosen president, Col. J. H. Bacon, vice president, Mr. H. A. True, treasurer, and Mr. N. F. Creary, secretary. Resolutions were passed authorizing the secretary to prepare by-laws to be submitted to the board for approval, and also to open stock subscription books at the First National Bank and the People's Bank. He was also authorized and instructed to make all necessary arrangements for the full and thorough organization of the company and for the speedy introduction into our city of that much-needed article, illuminating gas.

Mr. Creary is the representative of Mr. D. H. Irland, a well-known and extensive gas operator in the east, and who is now erecting the gas works for the city of Leadville. Under the auspices of Mr. Irland we may confidently expect that before the winter sets in our streets and business houses, as well as residences, will be illuminated with that greatest of modern conveniences gas, and our handsome young city thus be rendered more attractive to strangers.

The gentlemen who have undertaken this extensive enterprise should, and we have no doubt will, receive ample encouragement from our citizens as well as from our city fathers. The latter, we understand, have been slightly "hitched" upon the subject owing to some ambiguities in the law relative to their powers to grant the franchises required, but we hope by Monday night our efficient city attorney will dissipate these doubts and our gas company will have a fair and open field in which to commence operations.

Concerning Irrigation.

The Colorado Farmer in discussing the matter of irrigation speaks as follows concerning the movement in that direction which is making the south: "We are glad to read that the press of southern Colorado is awakening to the fact that they need the application of the irrigating law to them. Last winter it was difficult to get a member of the legislature from that country to give any consideration to the subject, and because they showed so little interest that portion of the state was left out in districting. But now we see by the Saguache Chronicle that meetings are being called in that county to take steps to be districted, that they may secure all the benefits of the law, and also accept the restraints.

There are portions of Southern Colorado that can be made as rich, agriculturally, as any portion of the north; and for fruit growing they will surpass us. We are not disposed to believe the estimate they place upon themselves, that they have less advantages than we have. We think when they examine the amount of water they can utilize, by building reservoirs and ditches on the improved principles adopted north, they will bring under cultivation an area of land that will astonish themselves."

The Bursting of a Water Spout.

The wash-out which occurred on the South Park railroad last Wednesday has worked a great deal of damage. A gentleman who was stopping for a few days at the boarding house near the saw mill at Thompson's gave a reporter of the Denver Tribune the follows graphic account of the disaster:

"We had a terrible hail storm shortly after three o'clock, and stones as big as hens' eggs fell thick and fast. While we were standing at a safe distance from the windows, for nearly every pane of glass was broken, we saw a strange phenomenon, accompanied by a dull, heavy, roaring sound like distant thunder. A large volume of what we afterwards found to be water, was seen at the top of the mountain, coming closer and closer like an immense funnel. As it approached the noise became almost deafening, and one old gentleman who was standing in the door, for we had all assembled in and around the doorway, exclaimed, "It's a water spout!" Out of the house and up the opposite hill we ran as fast as was possible, to almost the summit. One of the parties who was furthest down, in terror turned around and beheld the water rushing and tearing down the opposite side, carrying with it huge boulders, uprooted trees and all sort of debris. It struck the house and the saw mill simultaneously and carried them away like straws, not a vestige of them remaining. We stood there in terror for a long time, hardly daring to speak a word, but finally becoming more used to the scene we began to look around us and take in the situation. When the height of the excitement had abated some little, an anxious mother missed her infant child, an instant search was made for the lost little one. After an hour spent in the water and mud one of the gentlemen discovered the child in a pool of water, and the stream still coming down the mountain side, lying close up by a rock which also supported a large bureau, under which the little one sat in the apartment intended for a drawer. The child was not a bit frightened, but seemed to be rather pleased with its situation, and strange enough had hardly a scratch upon it. The joy of the distressed parent can easily be conceived when the wet youngster was placed safe and sound in her arms. The water continued to rush down the Gulch for several hours and we had to prepare places to sleep on the side of the mountain. Early the next morning I joined a number of men who desired to reach Denver as soon as possible, and started to walk to the train about seven miles distant. When we reached there we found it was a wrecking train with a coach attached, and after being delayed several hours for the wreckers to prepare the track, we started on our way home.

In the canon the track was also torn out in spots, and a good bit of it at other places had the bedding washed out and the rails twisted. Temporary bridges are being constructed to facilitate the running of the trains. An engine was run into a ditch a short distance this side of Thompson's in consequence of the weakened condition of the road bed. Three flat cars were also carried away, some forty feet, with three men on them, who, wonderful to relate, were not at all injured; they only receiving a thorough drenching and a big scare.

One of the most disastrous difficulties arising from this unexpected accident is the great delay of the mails. There has not yet been a single mail sent out to Leadville since the storm, and as a consequence there has been a great accumulation of matter, which will doubtless be a source of much trouble to the carbonate camp, as well as to the many towns along the line of the road."

The mercury stood at 160 in Leadville recently. The thermometer hung in a Turkish bath house, however.

Some of the opposition in Ohio are speaking slightingly of the republican nominee for governor because he is the head of a "spoke factory." Isn't such an objection as this especially out of place in a democratic country?

Chastine Cox, the New York murderer, says that it was women, and trinkets to give them, and deck them with, that wrought his ruin. Chastine Cox is wrong. It was his own wickedness and weakness that brought him where he is.

The law of Ohio does not allow candidates to treat. They can draw the cork, however, and tell the fellows to treat themselves, which answers the purpose. Some of the "soakers" like it even better than the old democratic plan of measuring.

The Massachusetts Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Children, in view of frequent accidents, lost, etc., advises at least one garment always worn to be marked with name and residence. Now as the only garment always worn is the cuticle we suppose the best way to mark the name and residence would be to brand them.

The Merriweather (Ga.) Vindicator says that bullfrogs down there live on spring chicks. A farmer had a pond near his barnyard, and noticing the havoc made with his young chickens, investigated, and caught a huge frog with a young chicken half swallowed. Now, if a snake had got after that frog, and a mud-hen after the snake!

The Inter-Ocean make the following pertinent remarks on the Swails case to which we have already referred: Will some one interview Wade Hampton on the Swails case? Mr. Hampton knows so much about the era of peace and good feeling in South Carolina that he may be able to explain why the white people of Williamsburg county will not permit Mr. Swails to return to live on his own property. Does Mr. Hampton's era of peace and good feeling contemplate a state of society in which to be a republican is to be a criminal?

Rabbi Einhorn, who has ministered to the congregation of the Synagogue Beth El, New York, for twenty-three years, preached his farewell sermon on Sunday last. Rabbi Einhorn was for many years one of the most vigorous opponents of slavery in the old days, and in his sermon he made touching reference to his work. He is to be succeeded in September by the Rev. Dr. Koehler, of Chicago, to whom he referred in closing: "I leave you in charge of one more energetic, perhaps, than I, but he cannot feel more heartfelt interest in the cause than I have during the last quarter of a century. As to you, my congregation, I cannot part from you. I may leave this pulpit, but it will only be in the hour of death that I will say farewell to this congregation of Beth El." One point of difference between Einhorn and Koehler is that the former has always been opposed to Sunday services, while the latter has encouraged innovations in that direction.

A PHILANTHROPIC PROPOSITION.

Henry Ward Beecher spoke at two open air meetings to vast assemblies on the Fourth of July, and of course received that tribute of applause which his magnetic oratory always commands. It is wonderful to see how this man holds out, what he can do, and how he keeps his hold on the public mind. Beecher is a sort of human miracle, and we gaze at his endurance, versatility and genius with admiration. The weight of years is on him, and yet there is no abatement of the old force. Instead of falling behind the rush of public events, and flagging of interest in current things, he has a broad, noble interest in everything that touches human welfare. At Walden Pond, near the home of R. W. Emerson, he made a speech on the Fourth which was greeted with immense applause. In his way he said: "I wish I had the power to go to congress." When this was received with tokens of approbation, he added: "I don't mean as a member, for although I am very wicked, I don't think I deserve that." Then he said what he would do if he could get into congress:

I would write over the wall, where every man could see them from Texas, from Louisiana, from Mississippi, from Tennessee, from Georgia, from Alabama, from the Carolinas, from Florida, all the way up; yes to the States of Vermont and New Hampshire, and even in the States of Massachusetts, Rhode Island and Connecticut the best State in the world, because I was born there, "Overcome evil with good" on one side, and on the other, "Speaking the truth in love;" and I would like to give to the Speaker of the House power, when any man began to boil with bitterness, began to taunt and gibe, to remind him of those inspired words, and have the wisdom of God to guide men on earth.

This is what he thinks he would do, and if he could have his way he would tell all the rest how, and let him have it all his own way.

HARPER'S FOR THE MONTH.

Harper's Monthly for August presents an extended table of contents. The illustrations are abundant and the articles for summer reading numerous. A descriptive paper on Lake George leads the number, and gives the reader a delightful glimpse of this most pleasant of summer resorts. The historical interest attached to this famous lake receives the attention of the writer, who succeeds in presenting an unusually interesting picture.

"The Nautical School, St. Mary's," follows the leading paper, and gives us a view of the boys who are learning to be sailors in their floating school house in the bay of New York. The object of this school is to produce thorough sailors for the mercantile navy, and the methods by which this object is attained are illustrated in the paper we are discussing by pen and pencil.

"Chautauqua," the Mecca of all Sunday School workers is given a place in the historical pages of Harper and the article is introduced by a fine portrait of John H. Vincent, the originator of the present encampment. The article is one of interest as it gives accurate information of an enterprise of which a great deal is vaguely known.

Will Wallace Harney contributes a little poem called "Little Barbara" which is very musical but doesn't mean much. He compares Barbara "ripe and red, with sweet small mouth," to "the bees abed." If W. W. Harney or anybody else can find any resemblance between a young woman and a bee abed, then we will accept this simile.

"The First Mrs. Petersham," is a short story, the plot of which is as old as East Lynn, but the story is well told for all that.

"Miss Mildred's Friend," another short story, belongs to the new school of the "Half Finished," if we may be allowed to coin an ephithet. A school whose first law is to break off in the middle and leave the reader to guess how the whole thing ended. The idea of the writers of this school seems to be that of Sam Weller, who said the whole secret of letter writing was to make the one who received the epistle "vish you'd writ more."

"Snug Hamlet and Home Town" is a bright and pleasant article full of humor and handsomely illustrated. "White Wings," a new novel by William Black, opens with this number. There is a vagueness somewhat puzzling and a marked presence of the famous author's mannerisms which detract from the interest of this first installment, but the reader is never left to grow languid with one of Black's books before him.

"Young Mrs. Jardine" has not yet become Mrs. Jardine, but the "trouble has begun" as the sagacious reader foresaw it would last month. The story strikes us as rather slow. There is no end of love in it, however, and as for conscientious scruples and high moral attitudinizing, the heroine can rival Amelia Malvina Fitzgerald.

"The Foreign Indebtedness of the United States" is a most thoughtful, accurate and valuable paper and quite as interesting as the novel which precedes it. Mr. R. D. Blackmore contributed the first chapters of a new seriel called, "Mary Anerley." The author of the best novel of recent times, "Lorna Doone," cannot fail to present something of surpassing interest.

RELIGIOUS NOTES.

A Baptist newspaper printed in the German language has been established in Hamburg, and in less than three months it secured four thousand subscribers.

A colored minister in Cleveland county, N. C., refused to supply a certain church because the congregation would not give him a mortgage to secure his salary for the year.

Professor Patton's consent to remain in Chicago is so proof that Chicago is not entirely at the mercy of the greater metropolis of the world, and that her proverbial liberality of purse and persuasion can balk even London's desire to draw away her stars of the pulpit. Chicago is potentially proud in this result.

The Rev. E. S. Thomas, rector of St. Paul's Church, St. Paul, Minn., has been paid a most unusual and flattering compliment, having been invited by all the denominations of that city to take charge of the instruction of all the Sunday school teachers there, some three hundred in number, they consenting to use the Episcopal liturgy in the preliminary exercises.

Two clergymen of the Church of England, who in early life distinguished themselves in battle, have recently died—the Rev. William Lecke, a Waterloo veteran, and for the last fifty years a clergyman of the Church of England, and the Rev. Thomas Bury Wells, one of the survivors of the battle of Algiers, who left the navy about fifty years ago to enter the Church of England.

The Baptist pastors of Chicago are to some extent absent on their vacation. The pulpit of the First church was filled on Sunday by Rev. John Gordon, of Montreal, Dr. Northrop preached for the University Place church; Dr. Galusha Anderson, for the Second church, and Rev. J. L. Farr, of Sandwich, for the Centennial. The Western avenue church is improving the absence of their pastor in repairing their house of worship.

The competitive reading for a prize of three hundred dollars took place at St. Andrew's Episcopal church, Philadelphia, on the 26th of June. There were eight contestants, three from the Cambridge Divinity School and five from the Philadelphia Divinity School. Selected passages were read from the Old and New Testaments and the prayer book and a hymn from the hymnal. The nine judges award ed the prize to Harold Arrowsmith of Cambridge, Mass.

The matter of church attendance is attracting considerable attention in England. A census of the churches belonging to the establishment in the east of London disclosed the fact that in all these edifices, with a seating capacity of 44,478, there were present exactly 905 persons. In four churches of the establishment in Rotherhithe only 156 persons were in attendance. Many of the churches are built with special reference to the poor population gathered around them, and the Church Times says that their present condition is "something appalling." On the other hand, a recent count in eleven Nonconformist churches of the same size and situation showed the presence of 5,500 worshippers.

The Christian Intelligencer says: "The most insidious form of the denial of the constant faith of the church in future retribution is that which is known as the doctrine of conditional immortality. Its advocates make eternal life the reward of the righteous, but insist that the finally impenitent are annihilated, and this passing out of existence is, they say, what is meant by everlasting death. What makes the matter worse is that the advocates of the error are sincere and devout men who write in a reverent tone and are for the most part sound on other points of theology. And they profess to deduce their views from the literal sense of Scripture undisturbed by dogmatic prejudice. They have thus contributed no little to that weakening of faith in eternal retribution, which is one of the saddest features of our time."

The Chicago Times says that it is believed that the Rev. H. W. Thomas, D. D., will be called to succeed the Rev. R. Collyer in Chicago. Dr. Thomas is now attached to the Methodist Episcopal Church, as Mr. Collyer used to be, but the Times says: "While Dr. Thomas's full statement of belief and that of Unity Church would not be identical, there is little of the preaching of the former that would not be satisfactory to the latter. At any rate, Dr. Thomas is well known to be entirely out of sympathy with the dogmatic preaching that is common in the orthodox churches, and feeling that salvation by faith and a vicarious atonement have been preached, even in the Methodist church, to the extent of encouraging Antinomianism and dulling the edge of the moral sense, his sympathies are altogether in the direction of preaching on individual righteousness, and he has a fellow feeling for people who, while aspiring in the right direction, are unable to subscribe to all the tenets of the orthodox denominations. Whatever may be the degree of Dr. Thomas' orthodoxy, it is perfectly true that most Methodists think he belongs outside of their body, and some of them are anxious to force him out."

Popular Superstitions.

A belief in the virtues of the "mad-stone" still survives in many parts of the country. We are credibly informed that a Texas gentleman recently made a journey of two hundred miles to Gainesville, in [illegible] of this unmentionable [illegible] applied to a dog-bite. The success of the application was supposed to be certain, since the stone stuck to the wound nine times. We are inclined to think that an abundant supply of fresh blotting paper would have done the work of absorption quite as well as the porous stone. But since the victim might not have had the same faith in the blotting paper, he would not have been so well secured as by the use of the "mad-stone" against a nervous disease, born of fear, simulating hydrophobia, and equally fatal.

There is another superstition, though equally wide spread, that the striped skunk (Mephitis putorius) is always capable of communicating canine madness to man by its bite. This is probably an instance of generalizing from insufficient data. The circumstance of a man being bitten by a skunk, must at all events be exceedingly rare, and if in one or two cases it has also happened that the natural [illegible] dies from hydrophobia, the interference would be natural, though incorrect, that skunk bites always carry such venom. That the skunk should occasionally be a victim of canine madness, is not at all improbable. Every farmer knows that a dog which has never seen a skunk will attack it at first sight; but never again after experience of its odorous powers of self-defense. Now when a dog goes mad, it loses all memory and all caution; will snap at even its friends and its master, and would certainly bite a skunk if there should happen to be one in the neighborhood, and thus communicate the disease. —Science News.

LITERARY NOTES.

In the August number of Sunday Afternoon J. C. Ambrose will discuss the new educational theme, "Election of College Studies."

"The Balloon," published by the Aeronautic society of New York, is an interesting account of the history of balloon voyages, including those of Wise, Glaisher, Tissandier and Donaldson. It contains also an account of the construction and inflation of modern balloons.

Lippincott's "New Cyclopedia of Chemistry," has been completed by the publication of the parts numbered from xxxvi. to xl. inclusive. The work has already won its way to the fullest recognition for its breadth of scope, its thoroughness both of text and illustration, and its exceeding accuracy. It now represents, in compact shape, the latest accepted results of research, and the latest teachings with respect to practical methods in applied chemistry.

The second volume of the Art Interchange substantially bound may be had at 140 Nassau street. The first number of the third volume is a typographical novelty, being rubricated as to column rules and initial letters. The change is made the occasion of an interesting article by Rev. Dr. Morgan Dix on "Rubrics and Rubrication," in which the rector of Trinity appears as a bibliopolist of zeal and knowledge. Another notable article in this number is President McCosh's review of Mr. Grant Allen's "Physiological Esthetics."

Charles Scribner's Sons have published the "Life and Letters of Madame Bonaparte," by Eugene L. Didier. The book is an expansion of the articles already printed in Scribner's Monthly, and the recent death of Mme. Bonaparte of course makes it especially timely. Her romantic marriage, which was really an episode in her life, inspired nevertheless the ambition which constituted the whole of it. Besides the pictures which the letters give of an interesting period of American history, they are remarkable as an unconscious portraiture of an ambitious and persistent woman.

A memoir by General John Cochran of his services in the war has just been published by Rogers & Sherwood. It has a title page of enormous length, from which the reader gathers that the object of the publication is to celebrate its author for first publicly advocating the arming of the slaves. The facts which General Cochran adduces to prove that proposition are wrapped up and nearly hidden in a web of most wonderful rhetoric. But when they are finally got at they seem to make out his case. There are also reminiscences which would be interesting if he would only tell them plainly, concerning General Cochran's share in the Charleston [illegible] Army of the Potomac under McClellan and Burnside. We learn that President Lincoln at first opposed the arming of the slaves, mainly because he did not possess a "discoursive intellect" like some other people. It would be an injustice to General Cochran not to reproduce some of the gems of his eloquence: "When considering that indigenous to the country, the slaves, as the depositories of its physical geography were intimate with the topography of the south, it did not seem unreasonable to conclude that with equal discipline the slave population in the emergent conflict for freedom would be able ultimately to overbear their masters." "Private malice in alliance with official hostility, and social repugnance in hand with political renown, raised the deriding sneer and the opposing obstacle." However, General Cochran is not incapable of making points, as this one on Pope: "Thenceforth his (McClellan's) success was to depend on General Pope's want of it, and General Pope seemed reliable at this point." Here is a character of Burnside: "Ignorance united to sincerity was all that was essential to establish the general's [illegible], and knowledge was not that was required to establish his error." By some blunder several pages of the text are repeated in the appendix. The whole pamphlet is announced as a supplement to Mr. Henry O'Reilly's "History of the Organization of Colored Troops in the state of New York."

A chief justice of the marine court of the city of New York who devotes his leisure to historical studies presents an unusual as well as a gratifying spectacle. "The Life and Epoch of Alexander Hamilton, by the Hon. George Shea," was undertaken, it is understood, at the instance of the Marquis de Talleyrand-Perigord, to whom some [illegible] the American and the French [illegible] the oration delivered at [illegible] in France, in which the chief justice devoted himself to cementing the bonds of amity between the two republics, and which gave rise to excited discussions in the Paris journals two or three years ago. This work is appropriately [illegible] Hamilton, scholar, poet, statesman, master of the English tongue [illegible] acknowledgment of his warm [illegible] towards my country." The volume is [illegible] with numerous [illegible] embellished with portraits of Hamilton, an excellent [illegible] Weimar painting—of Talleyrand, of Mrs. Hamilton and Aaron Burr, besides a fac simile of one of Hamilton's letters to his son, and an interesting map of North America as proposed to be [illegible] 1783. The narrative relates entirely to the early days of Hamilton, and closes with his acceptance of a position on Washington's staff. It is evident that the chief justice has made a diligent search of all contemporary authorities which could shed light upon the subject of his panegyric. The results of his researches are presented with a growing and brilliant rhetoric, less magniloquent indeed than the style of Mr. Bancroft, but in marked contrast to the dry and meagre manner which has lately become [illegible] historical writings. Perhaps the most striking example of the chief justice's eloquence is in the introductory chapter, "Of the Individual." The value of the work is enhanced by a copious index and by abundant notes and references upon the principle which the preface announces—that "Annotation also assists us to the sense of the text, as intelligible gesticulation explains the meaning and spirit of the orator."

PERSONAL.

The London Week, edited by Louis J. Jennings, has stopped publication.

Dr. Parker, a rather eccentric preacher of London, has been invited to preach in Mr. Beecher's church for three months this summer.

It is said that the story contributed to a Philadelphia newspaper by Miss Lillie Duer was taken almost verbatim from a book styled "Psychology, etc., a Curious Book for Curious People," published in 1869.

The Whitehall Review learns that the ex-Empress Eugenie "has no intention of leaving England permanently." She received four thousand despatches and seven hundred letters on the day after the arrival of the news of her son's death.

Archbishop Purcell does not expect during his lifetime to liquidate his debt, but he feels fairly assured that he will be able to bring it to such dimensions that it can be easily carried until future accumulations shall render complete payment feasible.

Mr. George Bancroft, the historian, who has been ill for a few weeks, is now able to ride out and to pass considerable time among his roses. He is hard at work upon his history, and keeps two shorthand writers busily at work under his direction.

Mrs. Sarah A. Dorsey, of Mississippi, who died at New Orleans last week, leaves her whole estate to Jeff Davis. The property includes two large plantations in the upper part of the state and an elegant villa at Beauvoir on the seacoast, where Mr. Davis is now living.

The death is announced at Wimbledon of Captain Field, known among English volunteers as "The captain of the English Twenty," who from the beginning of the volunteer movement had taken a very active part in the great annual rifle gathering.

The London Telegraph says: "Madame Etelka Gerster having been prevented by indisposition from taking part in the morning concert given at Her Majesty's Theatre on Wednesday last in aid of the Great Northern Hospital, sent to the charity a donation of £20."

Mrs. Robert Whitaker, whose husband's will, now disputed in the courts in Philadelphia, is attracting much attention, died a few days ago. The one half of Mr. Whitaker's real estate that she was to enjoy during life now reverts to the dead manufacturer's estate, and increases by about $75,000 the amount that the heirs are fighting for.

Mlle. Jeanne Samary, of the Comedie Francaise, is one of the reigning beauties of London, and her favorite relaxation of cracking nuts with her teeth is being adopted in high society. The young swells of the day have invented a new expression. A lady with beautiful teeth is described as having: "Haw! haw! fine nutcrackers; haw!"

At the recent meeting of the General Theatrical Fund in London, Mr. Hollingshead, a theatrical manager, having made [illegible] He was once a writer, he said, and had only ceased to be one because he had a theory that every literary man was like a barrel organ, and had only a certain number of tunes to play. After writing for magazines and newspapers for fifteen years, he thought that he had said everything he knew, and if he had gone on fifteen years longer he would have had nothing new to say.

A French imperialist newspaper proposes that Frenchmen take some French soil to Chiselhurst and make a grave for the late Prince Imperial. "His sleep will be easier," it says, "if he lies in a morsel of that country which he loved so much, and whose glory, at the cost of his life, he went to plant like a flag at the other end of the world." The radical caricaturists, on the contrary, are sharpening their pencils for the cartoon business, although the police have directed the removal of the many caricatures which have decorated the shop windows of Paris.

Helen Petrie, the Grace Darling of the Shetland Islands, died recently. During a great gale in 1856, when, in sight of the [illegible], the last of the home-seeking fishing boats was capsized, two of its occupants were drowned, and the other two, clinging to the overturned boat, were drifting out with the tide, she and her sister-in-law, with her father, a one-armed man of seventy years, steering, put off in a small [illegible] and effected the rescue which none on shore would venture to attempt. She received the medal of the Royal Institution for the feat.

Dean Stanley, in a late sermon, noticed the great improvement that has taken place during the present century in the habits and moral character of seamen in the British navy, and also in the merchant service. Profane oaths, which were once thought even necessary in the case of officers, have almost ceased to be heard; the orgies which used to accompany the departure and return of a vessel are no longer recognised as part of a sailor's enjoyments, and if here and there brutal passions and reckless folly are still seen they are regarded as a disgrace to the British seaman.

The invitations to Edmond Blanc's festival in honor of his mare Nubienne's victory in the Grand Prix were issued in the names of her sire and dam, as follows: "Rey Blas and Nice invite you to be present at the festival which they will have the pleasure of giving at the chateau of La Chapelle en Serval in honor of their daughter Nubienne, winner of the Prix de Diane and the Grand Prix." The tables were arranged in a horse shoe and the menu included special dishes commemorative of the mare, her parents, trainer, jockey, owner, stable boy, &c., as follows: Potage a la Pifferari, Bouchee Fitz-Plutus; Saumon, de la Celle Saint Cloud, Fillet a la Nice, sauce Ray Blas; Poulet au Blanc, Jambon a la Wheeler, Galantine a la Hudson, Salade a la Covey, Gros et petits pois a la Dennetier, Bombe Nubienne; Douceurs et biscuits en procelaine, Dessert a la Tourangelle, Vins.

The Springs are situated at the mouth of Cottonwood Cañon, in a most beautiful country, salubrious atmosphere, surrounded by scenery of the most gorgeous description, being in the very heart of the Saguache range. Mount Yale lying to the north and Mount Princeton to the south. The crystal waters of the Cottonwood River, abundant with trout, come dashing and sparkling down past the door of the Sanitarium from its fountain head, the eternal beds of snow which cap the hoary old mountain.

The flag staff is to be repaired and painted.

We received yesterday about a week's mail from Leadville.

Tully Kemp, of Pagosa Springs, was appointed a notary public Thursday.

A car load of railroad employes went up to Denver on last night's express.

"Buffalo Bill will appear at Court House Hall next Thursday evening the 24th.

There were three drunks yesterday. Expenses something over twenty dollars.

The Colorado Springs and Leadville coach came in last evening with six passengers.

Remember that services will be held in the new Congregational church building this morning.

Mr. W. B. Vickers will have charge of the historical portion of the new illustrated work on Denver.

The lovers of first-class acting will not fail to secure seats for Lawrence Barrett's appearance next Tuesday.

Just now there is every indication of good crops throughout the mountains and parks in the western portion of this county.

In another column will be found an advertisement of the appearance of "Buffalo Bill" at Court House Hall next Thursday evening.

The funeral services of Mildred Jenkins will take place at the house of Mr. H. R. Jenkins on South Tejon street, to-day at 1 p. m. to-day.

Attention is called to the advertisement in another column of Lawrence Barrett, who appears at Court House Hall next Tuesday evening.

A twenty-eight hour pedestrian contest, between Betzold, of Baltimore, and Elkes, of New York, began at Denver last evening at six o'clock.

The banana line is bound to rule or ruin. It has begun to lay a third rail to the depot in North Pueblo, thus cutting off South Pueblo from its traffic.

The freighting along the entire line of the D. & R. G. road is very uncertain at present. We are informed that no freight whatever arrived in this city yesterday.

The street sprinklers have tapped the main in the alley west of Tejon street between Pike's Peak avenue and Huerfano street, and now our streets are sprinkled with Ruxton creek water.

Mr. W. F. Hogan, of Leadville, has sold his newspaper property the Eclipse to Hon. Nelson Hallock. The editorial columns of the journal are now under the control of R. G. Dill, late of Denver.

We have received a copy of the Kenton, O., Republican, containing an account of the Ohio editorial excursion to Colorado. Mr. Miller, editor of the Republican, speaks very pleasantly of the visit to this place and Manitou.

Mr. Tilman's party of United States government surveyors, who are making the geological and geographical survey of Colorado, are camped at the Old Townsend ranch some twenty-five miles east of here. A lot of their instruments arrived by Thursday's express.

They have a burro who appears on the stage of a theatre up in Leadville. He was absent the other night and the manager had to explain that its owner objected to the animal's becoming an actor, and stated that "he was not going to have his jack made a fool of."

The Southern Union Telegraph company have completed their lines to Ten Mile. The company is putting a line on to Georgetown, and proposes to run to the Gunnison country via Granite and Twin Lakes, also to Colorado Springs and to points in the south generally. Mr. W. A. C. Camplin, a well-known telegraph man, is superintendent.

As a sample of the way in which the Atchison management have treated the people of Colorado Springs—attention is called to the fact that three days before the D. & R. G. took possession of the road last month, the freight on coal from Canon City to this place was advanced ninety cents per ton. Lennox Bros. did not raise the price of coal on account of the transfer of the road, but since its return to the Atchison company the ninety-cent tariff will probably be enforced. This is an argument that can be fully understood and appreciated by every one in the city.

Personal.

W. T. Clark, of the Denver Telegraph, is registered at Pascoe's.

Ex Attorney General Sampson of Canon City went to Denver last evening.

Mr. George Summers is down from Leadville on a short visit to his family.

Mr. J. K. Bothwell, jr. of the Southern Illinois Journal published at Flora, Illinois, called this morning.

Mr. J. L. McNeil, cashier of the Bank of San Juan, Del Norte, went through on the northern bound train yesterday.

Mr. J. F. Atherton, proprietor of the Springs Hotel and Crawford House, came down on the Leadville coach last night.

Mr. Curtiss of the general office of the Santa Fe at this place was sent Thursday to take charge of the station at Alamosa.

Mr. C. H. Starkey has returned from the Gunnison country and brings a very flattering report, indeed, of the mining district near Gothic City.

J. H. Garrison, editor of The Christian, St. Louis, and president of the Christian Publishing Co., is at Manitou with his family, and will probably remain the coming week. He is camping near the Iron Ute spring.

Jay Huntington, business manager for N. C. Forrester and representing Hon. W. F. Cody's (Buffalo Bill) combination, called on us to-day. He is stopping at the Colorado Springs Hotel.

A Denver morning paper in reporting a sermon misprints the "saving of souls" to the "saving of fools." Of course it was a misprint, no clergyman is so ambitious as to undertake such a vast enterprise as the one suggested.

News was received last night of an accident in Denver of a serious nature. So far as the facts can be learned the D. & R. G. switch engine started out behind the passenger train on the Denver & South Park road, and having on too much steam ran into the rear car, the concussion throwing the engine from the track, killing the engineer and yard master and injuring the fireman.

The three commissioners to make estimates in the Grand Canon of the Arkansas, in the railroad case now pending in the United States circuit court, have been appointed as follows: The Santa Fe nominates General William Looey Smith, of Chicago; the Rio Grande, William E. Gray, chief engineer of the Central Pacific railroad, of California, and the court selects Andrew N. Rogers, superintendent of the Bobtail mine of Gilpin county.

The Denver Tribune of yesterday gives a raw-head-and bloody-bones account of the alleged riot on the part of the D. & R. G. employes in that city, and then makes the following sappy, if not sapient editorial comment: "From the present appearance of matters the authorities of the county of Arapahoe and the city of Denver do not intend to stand any nonsense from the displaced employes of the Denver and Rio Grande road. In case they become boisterous, prompt and severe measures will be adopted to preserve the peace.

The gulch mines on Four Mile have lately received important accessions, some twenty or thirty Chinamen having leased and taken up claims there. Their introduction on the creek has opened up several claims which have not heretofore been worked, on account of the fact that the diggings have not been considered rich enough for white labor, though paying from $1 to $2.50 per day to the man. We hail the advent of the almond-eyed diggers for gold because they will bring shining nuggets to light which else might have lain hidden indefinitely.—Boulder News and Courier.

Well Done.

The Leadville Reveille relates the following story of a lucky strike: The Reinbold Brothers, agents for the Rocky Mountain Brewery of Denver, have established a depot on Stray Horse gulch just below the Joe Bates mines. Needing a good well and knowing that the mines in that locality were greatly troubled with water, they hired a man to sink down in front of their store for a supply of the aqueous fluid. At thirteen feet from the surface the well digger found that he had a better prospect for striking mineral than ordinary water, and at a depth of twenty-five feet the iron-stained porphyry rock was found by assay to yield thirty-one ounces in silver. That well project was quickly abandoned and mining began in earnest. The hole is now forty-one feet deep, dry as a powder house and [illegible] fully for[illegible]ing a first class mining property. The owners, on the 10th of July had their claims surveyed and recorded and are working away at their location, which has been named the Olga mine. This incident is illustrative of the freaks of fortune attendant upon the business of mining and now we would like John Blake to rise up and offer that big water hole he struck in the near vicinity last summer for the dry well of the Reinbold Brothers.

Our Gas Company.

This company, organized under the auspices of some of our best business men and bankers, bids fair to be an early and complete success.

It is scarcely worth our while to comment upon the superiority of gas over our present means of light, since most, if not all of our citizens have known and fully appreciated, not only the great convenience of gas as light, but also the heavy percentage of safety in its favor over all other known illuminating commodities. Though the enterprise undertaken by these gentlemen is one of considerable magnitude, yet we are very sanguine of its successful issue, from the very fact that these gentlemen have undertaken it. For the fair investment of money with good prospects of substantial returns, we know of no safer hands wherein to place it than in those of the president and efficient board of directors and officers of this company. Its secretary, prior to its organization, made a careful estimate of the average consumption of gas within the present proposed gas limits, and without fear or favor, the company can assure them, who desire a safe and profitable investment for surplus capital, that they cannot do better than place their money in its stock. Within the proposed gas-limits, there are one hundred and seventy private residences, and about one hundred and thirty places of business, hotels, etc., etc. If one-half, which is undoubtedly too low an estimate, of these will use the gas of the company, we are assured that very fair dividends can and will be declared upon the stock. We understand that outside capital is eager and anxious to "gobble up" this stock, and are but waiting for the doors to be opened in order to step in. But as this is a home enterprise, the company proposes to extend the first facilities to home capital, and it has determined to keep open stock subscription books, for a limited period, at our different banks.

Besides, as a matter of convenience and safety, sound and profitable investment, the great desideratum so long needed in our city—lighted streets—will be supplied and our quiet little city will thus be rendered, especially at night, beautiful, bright and attractive.

We trust that our gas company will meet with ample and speedy success, and we would paraphrase this remark by saying that it is the duty of every good citizen to lend this enterprise an effective helping hand.

College Entertainment.

At a recent meeting of the committee on supplies for the proposed Colorado College entertainment three were present the following members: E. S. Joslyn, chairman; The Rev. Mr. Hyde, Mr. J. P. Holcomb, Mr. Chas. Barker, Capt. Geo. De La Vergne, and Dr. T. G. Horn.

Dr. Horn was elected secretary of the committee.

A committee to obtain aid was appointed, consisting of the following named business men: Mr. G. S. Barnes, Mr. C. F. Tilton, Mr. C. E. Durkee, Mr. A. L. Millard, Mr. John Klattenhoff and Maj. Macomber.

Without transacting further business the committee adjourned to meet at the secretary's office on Friday evening, the 11th inst., and at which time the following committees of ladies were appointed to solicit aid:

Mrs. Kerr and Miss Bland, who will canvass that portion of the town lying north of Willamette street.

Miss Dorr and Miss Newman from Cimarron street south.

Miss Stanley and Miss Parker from Cimarron street north to Vermijo.

Miss Van Voorhis and Miss Aiken from Vermijo street to Cucharas.

Miss Andrews and Miss Edwards from Cucharas street to Huerfano.

Miss Crowell and Miss H. Stewart from Huerfano street to Pike's Peak avenue.

Miss White and Miss Skinner from Pike's Peak avenue to Kiowa street.

Mrs. Shields and Mrs. Gaby from Kiowa street to Bijou.

Mrs. Wilson and Miss Marlow from Bijou to Boulder.

Miss Packard and Mrs. Sagendorf from Boulder to Willamette.

These committees are requested to report to the committee on supplies at their earliest convenience.

Improvements.

Among the important improvements now in progress in this city is the erection of a residence by Prof. W. D. Sheldon. Messrs. Anderson & Gaby have the contract and are putting the work through with all possible speed. The building on the ground floor will be 32 by 36, feet, and the second story 16 by 36. The frame, we are informed, is already up and much if not all the sheeting is on. The building is to be completed by the middle of September. It is located on north Tejon street.

The Sutton boys have purchased a lot at the East end of Huerfano street, and commenced the construction of a cottage 14 by 20. Mr. Finney is the builder.

An immense elk was seen consorting with J. D. Griffith's horse last Tuesday, on the divide between Empire and Iowa gulches. Griffith didn't have a gun, and his horse was loth to come back to civilization, and when captured, the elk quietly walked away, regardless of consequences.—Reveille.

THE PEOPLE OF PUEBLO SPEAK.

Falsehood and Slander Sternly Rebuked.

The sensational, malicious and mendacious accounts published in the organs of the Atchison railroad company have aroused the just indignation of the citizens of Pueblo, who have been unstintingly slandered.

We have given, from day to day, the statement of affairs as they really exist. We have not defended unlawful conduct, we have had no word of justification or defense for any man who has willfully broken the peace or perpetrated an overt act, but we do say that the journals which have been guilty of unscrupulous attempts to malign honest men who have done their duty are only worthy of the contempt of just and honorable men. We make no assertions as to the condition of affairs on our own authority, we have printed no item of news concerning the disturbances that was not obtained from men who were present and knew positively the truthfulness of what they said.

The Denver Tribune of yesterday printed the following utterly false and foundationless statement in a special dispatch from Pueblo:

"The ex-officials of the Denver & Rio Grande company in South Pueblo are hand and glove with the rioters. The sheriff of the county has positively refused to interfere in any way with the rioters and the President of the Town Board of Trustees of South Pueblo will not appoint any additional policemen. Several merchants of South Pueblo are preparing to leave the town, and a general feeling of disgust prevails there. The mob was tolerably quiet to-day, but an outbreak may occur at any time. The Santa Fe employes are without arms and at the mercy of a drunken mob."

Now it is not necessary for us to waste words in commenting on such a malicious slander, for the people of Pueblo have taken the matter in hand, as the following special dispatches to the GAZETTE will show:

SHERIFF PRICE VINDICATED.

SOUTH PUEBLO, July 19. We, the undersigned, citizens of North and South Pueblo, have noticed with indignation the articles in the Chieftain so severely reflecting on Sheriff Price. We are constantly going to and from and between the two towns and in and about the Union depot on the south side and have seen no cause for such unjust and malicious charges as are made. We personally know that Sheriff Price has been vigilant in the discharge of his duties and has endeavored at all times to preserve the peace. Further that during the disturbance last Thursday said sheriff was on hand and used every endeavor to preserve the peace without fear, favor or affection. We make this statement voluntarily to refute the malignant charges made against an innocent man; charges as we believe not made in good faith but for the purpose of stirring up further strife and causing more riot which such articles are only calculated to do.

H N Banks, mayor, O Wilson, justice of the peace, Fred Dickson, C Livingston, D Stimmel, A T Fisher, Geo W Ink, B E Fimple, J T Barkley, Wm R Hamlin, T D Sanborn, Samuel Champlin, H A Howard, P W Merrill, Andy McGovern, Fred Meyers, M Hicks, J H Andrews, W W Strait, A Allen, Joseph D Allen, Wm Allen, W Beardfield, Jos P Hanna, Julius Hildebrand, Frank H Shrock, Geo Hogan, Michael Hogan, Geo H Home, Chas W Ellis, Jno Makes, Otto Depps, Henry Kammerer, Frank L Fisher, Michael Quigley, Chas A Jackmas, Richard Kear, T H Wagar, S W Banks, P Desmond, C H Lamdin, Stephen Walley, A D Joseph, J S Thompson, Jas Rice, G J Rankin, Orman & Martin, A Corder, T A Duke, B C Leonard, T R Jones, W H Hyde, mayor, J N Calloway, J A Mertz, J T Hall, Hexter & Berry, Sam H Bowman, B F Davis, and fifty others.

Now it appears to us that the well known names of responsible business men attached to the preceding telegram are a sufficient guarantee of the truth of the matters therein set forth.

In the GAZETTE of Friday we distinctly stated that Sheriff Price was on the ground and did his duty as an officer. The confirmation given to this statement by the citizens of Pueblo will convince all of the falseness of those reports, which have condemned the conduct of Sheriff Price.

THE TRUE STORY OF THE RIOTS.

As to the character of the disturbance which occurred at Pueblo, and as to the present condition of affairs, we will allow the citizens of that city to speak in the following special dispatch to the GAZETTE:

SOUTH PUEBLO, July 19. We the undersigned citizens and business men of South Pueblo do hereby enter our solemn protest against the several articles in the Chieftain reflecting against the town of South Pueblo and its citizens. Said articles are wilfully and maliciously false in every particular and are libels on the town of South Pueblo and its citizens generally. Our town is, and always has been, the railroad center where large numbers of employes are always to be found. That there is now and then among a large number of railroad men a man more or less lawless we don't deny. But in the past as in the present our town officers, constable and police have done everything in their power to keep and preserve perfect order and quiet, and they are still vigilant to that end.

Men, women and children go about our streets the same, and with as perfect safety as in North Pueblo or any other place. Business goes on as ever. Strangers are protected with all the security that they can have anywhere, and any statement to the contrary is wickedly and maliciously false. We further aver that it is our sol[illegible] ing in trouble is engendered by the inflammatory articles in the Chieftain, and the Chieftain more than any other thing is the primary cause of any outbreak. Further, that since Thursday there has been no lawlessness nor violence, and there has been no necessity for special policemen, as the marshal and deputy marshal are entirely capable of preserving the peace and order of the town.

(Signed.)

H. N. Banks, mayor; Stephen Walley, Frank H. Shrock, justice of the peace; Chas. W. Ellis, town clerk; C H Lamkin, mechanic; Christopher Wilson, police justice; A G Bond, Fred Dickson, merchant; T W Langley, merchant; W W Strait, Wm R Hamlin, merchant; John Sulard, J F Barkley, merchant; T D Tanbon, Geo W Fugard, lumber dealer; W F Townsend, attorney; J W Banks, merchant; P J Desmond, constable; A Allen, butcher; C Livingstone, miner; R C Nicholson, hotel keeper; Geo H Home, merchant; W Bradfield, shoemaker; Geo Hogan, J Hildebrand, baker; Andy McGovern, John Banker, deputy marshal; Joseph McMurtie, attorney; M Sheldon, lumber merchant; Geo W Ink, contractor and builder; A Harrison, liveryman; Richard Kear, Michael Quigley, hotel keeper; J Albert, hotel keeper; E Herber, hotel keeper; Jas P Hanna, James Tammany, Michael Hogan; B E Fimple, D Sullivan, hotel keeper; John Gray, P O news stand; Wm Allen, T H Wagar, barber; Geo T Stevenson, J Dallan, J W Seaton, contractor and builder; Fred Myers, barber, Wm H Duffy.

Company B.

Company B held a meeting at the armory last evening, and decided to dispense with further sessions until the first of October.

Resolutions were adopted complimentary to the Chaffee Light Artillery of Denver for their hospitable treatment during the encampment at that place on the 4th of July. The resolutions will be neatly printed and framed and sent to the artillery company.

It was decided to have the flag pole on the common repaired and painted.

Y. M. C. A.

We are requested to say that Mr. M. Schoonmaker, general secretary of the Y. M. C. A. of Kansas City, will arrive in Colorado Springs next week. On Sunday, the 27th, at 4 p. m., he will conduct a children's meeting in the Congregational church. At 6:30 there will be an out-door meeting at some point on Tejon street, and at 8 in the evening another meeting will be held in the Congregational church. It is the intention also to have Mr. Schoonmaker deliver a lecture sometime during the following week in the interests of our home association, as it is in need of funds.

Rev Father Bender of Colorado Springs has been appointed by Bishop Machebeuff, as the successor to Rev. Father Henry Wagner, as pastor of the new German Catholic church of West Denver. The new church will be immediately pressed to completion. Architect Goodrich says work will be commenced the first of next week. We congratulate our German citizens on so successful a state of affairs.—Denver Republican.

The people of Colorado Springs regret very much to lose Father Bender, and their best wishes go with him to his new field of labor. We have not learned what arrangement has been made to fill the vacancy thus made at this place.
